Aurora Labs — Engineering Note

The telemetry analytics engine at the core of Lumen is internally codenamed Borealis. Borealis performs the on-device correlation of sensor streams and powers Lumen's anomaly detection.

The Borealis codename appears only in internal engineering material and is not part of any customer-facing product name. Engineers refer to the analytics engine as Borealis in design documents, commit messages and incident reports.